

LEGISLATURE BUSY CLOSING UP WORK

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM RECEIVED FINAL VOTE IN THE SENATE.

BOTH HOUSES ANXIOUS

To Finish Up the Sessions' Work and Prepare for the Final Adjournment.

[BY UNITED PRESS.] Madison, Wis., June 28.—The initiative and referendum resolution received final passage today, the senate adopting the report of the conference committee. The conference report does not change the senate resolution except that it strikes out the provision that one legislature can present a constitutional amendment to the people for adoption or rejection. The vote of the resolution was 18 to 1.

Does Not Endorse. The senate refused to pass the resolution, favorably acted on by the assembly, directing the attorney general to take action against unregistered lobbyists who are alleged to have been recently active. Opponents of the resolution asserted that the anti-lobby law was known to the attorney general and that it was not necessary to specifically direct his attention to alleged violations.

Pass Resolution. The assembly this afternoon passed a bill appropriating $5,000 to cover the expenses of an investigation into the activities of the alleged school book trust in Wisconsin. The resolution providing for the probe was passed yesterday. A special legislative committee will conduct the work and will report at the next legislative session.

Not Good Law. The senate refused to pass a bill compelling the Standard Oil company to charge a uniform price for its products in all parts of the state.

No Opposition. The senate confirmed the appointments of the governor, announced last night. On the appointment of Dr. A. T. Hurdwick as state veterinarian, State Senator Whithead of Janesville refused to vote aye and was joined by State Senator Perry of Alcona.

Made Amendment. The assembly adopted an amendment to the "Sunday closing" law giving grocery stores, milk depots and other food establishments the right to keep open on Sunday.

River Bill. The bill giving the Chippewa and Menominee improvement company the right to build reservoirs on the two rivers to conserve the water supply for the benefit of manufacturing establishments along the river was concurred in by the assembly.

Join Departments. The bill joining the state labor department to the newly created state industrial accident insurance department was concurred in by the senate.

Abolish Bailot. The senate also concurred in the bill enabling Eau Claire and La Crosse counties to abolish the Dumas two count ballot.

A short distance above the place where Knoff and Connors were located, Wallace Hallett and his nephew, ("Nudge") Hallett were captured. FARM RESIDENCE IN LA PRAIRIE BURNED DOWN THIS MORNING

Home Occupied by J. O. Woodman on Farm Belonging to John Spenton Burned to Ground at Eight O'clock Today.

Fire originating from a gasoline stove was the cause of a blaze which completely destroyed the residence on the farm owned by John Spenton and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Woodman in the town of La Prairie, about three miles south east of the city.

The explosion occurred about a quarter to eight this morning and the flames were quickly communicated to the wood work of the kitchen. In a few minutes the entire house was in flames and by the time aid could be summoned it was evident that nothing could be saved.

Mrs. Woodman and small daughter Doris, were alone at the time of the explosion as Mr. Woodman was working in a field some distance from the house. Mrs. Woodman hastened to save what things she could and managed to rescue her silverware, valuables and a few articles of furniture from the burning building.

Through the efforts of neighbors who arrived as soon as possible, and the direction of the wind, the other buildings near the house were saved. The house and most of the furniture were consumed. Both the residence and household articles were partly covered by insurance.

CANAL PURCHASE PROVED BARGAIN

Recent Appraisal Shows Uncle Sam Was Gainer in Buying Panama Ditch From the French.

Washington, June 28.—Contrary to usual custom, Uncle Sam, who generally insists on full knowledge of value before making a purchase, bought the French Panama Canal property, and then ascertained its value afterward. The appraisal has just been completed by a special board, and their report has the approval of Col. George W. Goethals, Engineer in charge of the canal construction.

The French company was paid $10,000,000 for its property and work done on the lock. This figure was based upon estimates of the Isthmian Canal Commission, and the latest report shows that the United States got a bargain. The total valuation of the purchase is now declared to have been $12,709,826.

This sum is made up of the following items: excavation toward the canal, $25,389,240; Panama Railroad stock, $3,614,430; maps, drawings and records, $2,000,000; material and equipment, $2,112,000; buildings, $2,054,203; lands, $1,000,000; use of Pacific ship channel, $500,000; roadmaking and clearing, $100,000.

The previous estimates were based on the excavation, for which the sum of $27,474,033 was allowed; Panama Railroad stock, $3,650,000; maps and records, $2,000,000; and then $3,000,000 was added to cover omissions. The new estimates reduce the allowance for excavations and for the railroad stock and cut out the lump allowance. In addition, allowances are made for lands, and the advantages resulting from the work done by the French company.

FIREMAN DEAD AND SEVEN INJURED IN WRECK LAST NIGHT

FIREMAN HENNES OF ELKADER, IA., LOST LIFE WHEN FAST PASSENGER, DUE HERE AT 6:50, WAS WRECKED NEAR BARD.

WELL.

TRAIN WAS DERAILED

Engine Was Overturned and Hurled to Side of Track and Coaches Derailed.—Passengers Have Miraculous Escape—Cause Unknown.

Train 137, fast passenger on the Janesville and Southern branch of the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul road, which leaves Chicago at 4:10 in the afternoon, met disaster in a derailment about a mile beyond Bardwell last evening about 6:15 causing the death of the fireman and injuries to the train crew and some of the passengers.

THE DEAD. JOSEPH HENNES, Fireman, Elkader, Iowa, pinned beneath overturned engine.

THE INJURED. JOHN D. DALLINGER, Mail clerk, 615 South Main street, Madison; cut about head and mouth and bruised about left shoulder and elbow.

JAMES W. DUNN, Engineer, Madison; thrown beneath engine cab and badly bruised about chest and shoulders.

W. H. GRIFFITH, Conductor, Chicago; bruised and injured about head and face.

H. BOWSER, Parlor car porter, Chicago; left arm and shoulder bruised and injured.

JOHN McADDEN, Brakeman, age 35, Libertyville; badly bruised and shaken.

ADOLPH HIGGINS, Passenger, age 7, Chicago; dislocated shoulder and other bruises.

H. W. RENNENBURG, Passenger, broker, Chicago; arm broken and shoulder bruised.

It was one of the worst smash-ups which has occurred in the vicinity of Janesville for many years. The mammoth engine is a mere junk heap, completely overturned, with the tender lying on the opposite side of the roadbed from the engine, having turned a complete somersault over the engine cab.

All the coaches left their trucks with the exception of the parlor car, and the baggage and express cars were forced at right angles to one another across the roadbed, the front end of the former jammed into a high embankment.

Escapes Miraculous. That more of the passengers and train crew were not more seriously injured in the miraculous part of the whole affair. Engineer Dunn escaped with only minor injuries and the only man who was hurt seriously was John D. Dallinger, United States mail clerk, who was in the end of the car next to the engine.

Aside from injuries to a few persons the majority of the passengers escaped from the wreck without even bruises, suffering merely a severe shaking up and a bad shock. Many of them when the first jolt came braced themselves for the crash which they anticipated, and prepared for the worst.

Just after jolt came before the coaches finally came to a stand still and the passengers were thrown from their seats with every jump of the train speeding along on the ties.

Train Was Late. The train which is due at Janesville at 6:58 and at Madison at 8:20 was late and after meeting the train which left here for Chicago at 5:20, at Walworth, had increased speed to make up time if possible. About two miles southeast of Bardwell is a rather sharp curve and it was just toward the western end of this that the final crash came.

Marks on the ties at a grade crossing some thirty rods beyond the wreck designated the place where the first truck left the track. Going at the high rate of speed that it was, it was impossible to bring the engine under control. It kept up its race along the roadbed, till it was fully thirty rods, dragging the coaches off the rails and at the final stop turning the engine over on the northeast side of the track, and hurling the tender completely over the engine cab to the other side of the track.

Roadbed Ploved. For almost the entire length of the train the roadbed was plowed up and the heavy steel rails snapped like so much wood. The ties were splintered and broken and scattered on the sides of the track. The gravelled right of way about the wrecked engine was dug up and gouged with holes as if the huge iron horse had endeavored to bury itself in the earth.

The first three of the coaches rested on the rails. The car trucks were forced from their positions and badly smashed. Many of the windows were shattered, but the frame work was, for the most part unharmed, except for the express and baggage cars.

Telescoping Prevented. The only thing which saved the coaches from telescoping and causing a longer list of dead and injured was the fact that the baggage car hit the high embankment on the north east side of the track and burying its front end into the soft clay denuded the shock and stopped the coaches behind. The mail and express car, which was directly behind the engine was forced to the other side of the track almost at right angles to the baggage car behind it, and stopped nearly at the top of a bank on the left hand side of the track. It was turned nearly end up and partially on one side and the front end was badly shattered and broken.

It was in this car that the unfortunate mail clerk met his injury, which was the most serious of any of the persons hurt. He fell the length of the car and slid along on his hands and face. His head and forehead was badly cut and his lower lip was torn from the jaw. He suffered other injuries and bruises. W. J. Higgins, baggage man, was in the same car with the mail clerk and escaped unhurt.

First Word Received.

First word of the terrible occurrence was received at the St. Paul depot here shortly before seven o'clock, about a half hour after the wreck happened. The smash-up took place over a mile beyond Harvard and it was necessary to cover the distance on foot. The message was sent by phone and the exhausted courier could only say:

"For God's sake get a train down here quick. We've had an awful wreck."

A relief train was made up here as quickly as possible and a wrecking crew summoned. Officials of the road here including J. W. Zimmerman, agent, O. J. Franklin, road master, and Doctors Pomeroy and Nuzum, a representative of the Gazette and others left for the scene of the wreck about twenty minutes to eight.

Other Aid First.
An engine and caboose brought first aid to the scene of the catastrophe from Walworth. Dr. Grant W. Carless and his assistant of that place, sought out the injured and dressed their bruises, and aided in removing the remains of the dead from the body.

The injured engineer was taken care of and the other persons attended to. There was a good deal of confusion which added to the difficulty of the task. A panic was prevented, however, and as none of the passengers were severely hurt, they were easily provided for. They were placed in the parlor car to await the arrival of the train from Janesville.

Probable Cause.
Much speculation was heard regarding the probable cause for the accident, but the exact defect which resulted in the disaster is not known and probably never will be. Some were of the opinion that a broken flange or a defective rail at the road crossing caused the derailment, but the south bound train, which was not at Walworth had not with any difficulty and other trains during the day had no trouble.

It is also thought that the truck of the tender or of the foremost car may have become disarranged starting the derailment, and it is also a possibility that a brake shoe or some other part of the engine became disarranged causing the disaster. The speed at which the train was going at the time would have been sufficient to make dangerous the slightest defect in any of the equipment of the running machinery.

Crowds View Scene.
People from the neighboring country for miles around gathered at the scene of the wreck, some to offer assistance, others impelled by mere curiosity. Persons from Walworth and Darion arrived before the relief train from Janesville. All who visited the place were appalled by the awfulness of the scene and have which had been wrought.

It could not be otherwise than noted the miraculous escapes of the train crew and passengers from what would seem like a certain death dealing disaster. That an explosion did not occur and that fire from the engine firebox did not break out, were matters for profound thanks on the part of those in the wreck. Upwards of a hundred persons were on the train and their lives were saved and saved. Had the final crash occurred only a few rods beyond the engine train would have undoubtedly been pitched down the high embankment upon which the road was built through the valley.

Passengers to Janesville.
It was about 10:15 before the passengers were aboard the relief train for Janesville. Inspection had to be made of the injured, tended, and the baggage and mail transferred before the train started for this city. John D. Hallinger, the injured mail clerk, accompanied personally in spite of his condition, the transferring of the mail, and was the last to get on the train for Janesville. Upon his arrival here he was taken to the Mercy Hospital, where he was made as comfortable as possible. He was resting quietly today.

Others of the injured were taken to Madison by the relief train, which went on from Janesville to that destination. Miss Marie Dunn, daughter of the Engineer, Jas. Dunn, is employed as one of the nurses at the Mercy Hospital. She was at the depot shortly before seven o'clock when her father's train came. When the first news of the accident came she supposed that her father had been killed. As soon as the Janesville relief train arrived at Harvard it was learned otherwise and she was sent to her that her parent was safe. She accompanied him to Madison.

Experiences in Wreck.
Every person in the accident had a story to tell of his experience. Some were thrown head long down the aisles of the coaches; others braced themselves when the first shock came and escaped being thrown. It, however, the porter, was serving supper to several passengers in the parlor car buffet. He had gone to the cabin for some dishes when the first jolt came. He was thrown down to the middle of the car and the dishes crashed upon him.

H. B. McGiffen of Madison, who is well known in Janesville, was eating his supper at the time. The dishes were thrown upon him and he was hurled across the table. He escaped unhurt.

He was not thrown or injured. The train in one of the farther coaches was thrown to the aisle, but was unhurt.

James Fifield of this city, was on the train, but escaped without being hurt. Mrs. W. C. Hodge of Starvo, Montana, had a small baby in her arms. Both were unhurt. It is believed that of Minnott Point, was unhurt. He stopped in Janesville over night.

Track Cleared Early.
Wrecking crews were summoned from Chicago and Milwaukee, and arrived at the scene of the accident after the relief train had left. They worked all night and had the debris cleared away in record time and a temporary track laid so that the early train for Chicago, which leaves Janesville at 7:30, went through at nine. The entire place was cleaned up by this afternoon and everything replaced for the resumption of regular traffic.

COMMERCIAL CLUB TO GO OUT AFTER MORE MEMBERS; SEEK 300

Increase of Membership And More Perfect Organization Discussed at Monthly Smoker Last Night.

"The slogan adopted at the monthly meeting and smoker of the Industrial and Commercial club held at the Elks' club rooms last evening. How after blow was dealt the knocker and the booster spirit was evident in all of the series of excellent talks by the different members who were unanimous in the opinion that an increase in membership was a pressing necessity.

The idea expressed by all of the speakers showed that it was generally considered that the only way to carry on a successful campaign for a greater Janesville, following an increase in membership was to better perfect the organization.

M. O. Mount gave the first talk in which he said that the only possible way in which benefit could be derived from such a club was by organization, through which greater things might be accomplished and more names added to the list of members. President A. P. Lovejoy also suggested and urged a more organized club and stated that he looked for great development in the near future in the way of a larger club.

Taking up the subject an ideal club in Janesville of 300 men, W. H. Dougherty gave a very interesting address, telling of the benefits to be derived from a working body of this type. He said that with such a membership and with the proper spirit manifested by each and every one of the 300, Janesville would be better fitted to cope with the propositions which are forced upon it as they presented themselves in the future and as they had presented themselves in the past. He suggested that at the next meeting each member come with the name of a man who would be willing to put his shoulder to the wheel and work for civic advancement.

All doubts of the speaker were swept away and the tax question was laid aside and the speaker in a carefully prepared talk by P. P. Starr, in which he set forth the benefits to be derived from equal taxation. He not only stated that a system, whereby the smaller manufacturer could be taxed on the same basis as the larger would be beneficial in allowing for their growth, but he also took issue with a statement made publicly, recently, to the effect that taxes were higher in this city than in any other in the state. By a list of figures which he had compiled he showed plainly by considering the growth of the city and the increase in the last ten years the taxes in Janesville had not increased any more than was to be expected and that they were not relatively higher than taxes in many other cities of Wisconsin.

Another feature of the evening's speeches was the talk by Thos. S. Nolan, "An Increase in Membership." He said, "Will be of great benefit to the club and to the city. I believe that those who are using the city as a resting place between the farm and the grave and whose influence is a detriment to the progress of the city, should be shown that a spirit of advancement has invaded the city and that Janesville will no longer stand for standstill methods." He stated, further, that he considered that things were on the incline and that with a club of 300 men here, great things would be in store for the Bower City.

Secretary Frank T. Lane chose for his subject, "The Need for more unity of action on the part of all of the members of the club. He appealed for a broader view on the part of the citizens as to the needs of the city. In the opinion of Mr. Lane, the membership of the club could easily be increased to the 300 mark, and that after this was done it would be possible to create a cash fund, the purpose of which would be to aid and encourage the smaller manufacturer. He said that in this way a greater good would come to the city. Mr. Lane dwelt at some length on the subject of response to calls upon the parts of individual members. He said that it should not be necessary to make a separate call for aid on each member, but there should be a result, a willingness at any time to help any proposition of merit to a successful ending. An illustration of this was given in the failure to renew the subscriptions for the coming year by men who had already announced their intention of so doing.

John Cunningham said that there was not a better city for its size in the country than Janesville and that a great step would be accomplished in the increase of the membership to 300. Thos. O. Howe said that Janesville was a great city as a home and a business place and that he had never regretted throwing in his lot here twenty-three years ago. F. H. Jackson spoke of the work of Secretary Lane and gave a very complimentary address and congratulated the club upon having secured such an able man to handle the work.

Mayor Nichols expressed himself as strongly in favor of an increase of membership to three hundred and also of the plan to create a fund by means of individual interest bearing notes to assist the small manufacturers. He thought that this would benefit the city more in the end than the plan of trying to secure new and larger industries for Janesville.

The arrangements for the next monthly smoker were put in the hands of a committee composed of J. H. Jones, P. H. Kory and Edward Amorpoli. A male quartette consisting of E. E. Van Pool, Frank Doane, Wilbur and Charles Collett rendered several very pleasing selections during the course of the speaking.

Suppositiously Propounded

Jack Edwards was called "the Jap" by his fellow bank clerks because of his raven-black hair, small, dark eyes and swarthy complexion. Coming from lunch, one summer day, he stopped gingerly across the dusty electric track, was warned off the street car track by the clanging of a gong, made a detour to pass a stationary automobile, pulled open a brass-bound, beveled glass door and mounted the flight of steps that led to the main floor of the bank. On reaching his department Edwards sauntered to his desk.

"Hello, bunch," he called, in lifeless tones to several young men who were grouped around an adding machine. Tommy Betts, the distinctive head of the department, glanced up with an expression on his face that was a caricature of wrath and called across the intervening desks, stools and baskets.

"Why don't you go to bed nights, Edwards? Your mistakes are bailing up the work of the entire department," exploded Tommy. "Come around here and take a squint at line 13. It don't balance by a mile."

Edwards glanced across the sheet and made a mental calculation.

"I guess I was asleep at the switch, fellows," he said, and smiled sweetly. "Leave the statement with me," he urged. "I'll fix it. I say, one minute, Tommy," he called, as the department head asked off with the others. "I'd like to drink you a question. 'Do think if a fellow getting only $80 a month got married that he and the girl could get along all right?'"

"Of course, it depends a good deal on the fellow and the girl. You couldn't wear $35 tailor-made suits and patent-leather shoes as you do now. If the girl's sensible, there's no reason why you shouldn't get along all right. A number of the fellows I know were married on less than $80, and they're getting along fine."

"You don't say so," Jack murmured jubilantly. Miss Mabel Marsh ran a comptometer and was an important cog in the machine that ground out the work of the bank. The young clerks raved her and of the room a delightful place to work and the little bell boys who sat on the polished benches downstairs and jumped to answer the call of the officers openly adored her.

"Say, Belle, what kind of a question do you suppose the Jap asked me a few minutes ago?" Inquired Tommy, as he fingered a long, white paper tape crowded with figures.

"How should I know? Why don't you tell me?"

"He wanted to know if I thought a young man could support a wife on $80 a month."

"What'd you say to him?"

"That I thought it depended a great deal on the young couple themselves. I explained he'd have to economize."

"The delightful thing about it is," declared Miss Marsh, flushing until her pretty face was as red as a penny. "that the girl the Jap picks out will be sure to care enough for him to do her share in—making it easy sledding."

After leaving Miss Marsh running her machine at a great pace, which slackened the moment he was out of sight, Tommy made his way back to his own department, mopping at Jack's desk.

"Say, Jap, I was just chinning with Belle Marsh. I told her about that hell question you asked me."

"Can't you keep a secret?" grumbled the Jap.

"Didn't know it was one," Tommy explained.

"What'd she say?" asked Jack.

"She said she felt sure any girl you picked out would care enough for you to—"

"Did she say that?" cried Jack, his face wreathed in smiles.

That Wednesday night the Jap called on his sweetheart, but it was not until he was ready to leave that he muttered up courage to say what the girl had instinctively felt all through the evening he had come to tell her.

"Belle, I'd like to ask you a question," he said. "Do you think—I say, Belle, do you think—"

"Why, of course I do," she admitted, and her dimple played havoc with the Jap's heart.

"That a fellow who is getting only $80 a month could get along all right if he got married?"

"I'm sure I can't say, Jack," she said. "You see, I don't know the two persons most concerned, and I—I have no way of judging." She stopped.

"Well, suppose—"

Belle Marsh straightened in her chair. "Do you think it fair, Jack, to ask me to answer a question like that?"

Jack hung his head for a moment, and took a quick step forward. His voice was husky with the emotion that took him, and shook him, and centered in his throat.

"Forgive me, Belle. The case I have in mind concerns you and me. Do you think—it's just that I love you. I want you. Belle, will you marry me?"

For answer, she arose and held out both arms, and Jack, taking her hands, gently drew her close.

MAN OF CULTURE HEADS TAX COMMISSION.

Lawson Purdy.

New York City.—In the person of Lawson Purdy, New York City has one of the most expert tax authorities to be found in the United States. He has made a life study of taxation, and is the father of New York's law which provides that land values and improvements should be assessed separately and listed in separate volumes of the tax report. This simple measure was Mr. Purdy's masterpiece of public service. It gave New York a new view of the taxation of real estate.

Mr. Purdy looks more like the head of a tax commission than the head of a tax collector. He is a graduate of Trinity college, Hartford, the son of a clergyman, and a man who has made his own way from the bottom to the top.

Last year, largely through his efforts, the department raised the assessment of land values by nine hundred million dollars.

Machine to Fill Knot Holes.

Boxes containing knot holes are not salable, and in some localities the lumber used for the box shooks is full of such blemishes, with the result that 20 per cent. of the total board footage has to be discarded. A machine invented by a Californian, saws out the knot hole, producing holes of uniform size. The same machine also saws the plugs for the holes, the work being done by two small hand blocks. The plugs are cut from waste saws of a thickness that corresponds with that of the boards to be plugged. The plugs, being cut slightly larger than the holes made for them, fit snugly, and are held firmly in place by small crimping nails, which leave both the inner and outer surfaces perfectly flush and smooth.—Popular Magazine.

NEW FORM OF SCREEN

Upper Section of Guides Hinged and Moves Inward.

An ingenious variation of the guide-way for sliding window screens has been invented by an Illinois man. This form of screen moves up and down on stationary grooves set inside the window frame, and usually is put in place by having a spring attachment on one end. In the device here shown the guides are made in two sections, the lower of which are stationary and the upper being hinged to the top of the window. When the latter is in vertical position it forms an unobstructed groove with the bottom section. It is very easy to adjust a screen on this form of guide, as the upper part of the guide can be pulled out at the bottom and the screen slipped into it. The guide is then allowed to drop back into place, and as the screen slides down over the point of intersection of the two pathways it holds both in exact alignment. It is easy to remove these screens to wash the windows.

ELECTED MANAGER OF GAZETTE TEAM

Oscar Hammarlund Chosen to Handle
Printers' Team With Paul Schmidt
As Captain.

At a meeting of the employees of the Gazette, interested in baseball, last night, Oscar Hammarlund was elected manager of the Gazette team and Paul Schmidt was selected as captain. Plans were made for putting a good team in the field, the Gazette being admitted to membership in the commercial league at a meeting of the managers on Monday night. The entrance of the Gazette team makes six more in the league. The Hammarlund company entered the league a week or so ago and played its first game last Saturday. The entrance of the two teams will make it necessary to rearrange the schedule so as to include them in the scoring for the pennant and give all the teams the same number of games.

The Hammarlund company holds its annual picnic up the river on Saturday and the Woodworkers will meet the Gazette team at the up-river park, the game being one of the features of the outing. Two games will be played at Athletic Park Saturday afternoon, the C. M. C. company against the Yale, M. C. A., and the Plumbers and Purker Pals.

TITLE HOLDER SIGNS FOR TO GO WITH WELSH.

Should Ad Wolgast win his bout with Owen Moran, scheduled for July 4th, he has signed an agreement to meet Freddie Welsh for a $10,000 July 4th later in the summer. Certified checks for $1,000 have been deposited by the managers. In the meantime, Welsh is preparing for his fight with Matty Baldwin at Frisco, Friday night. No Longer Afraid of Thirteen.
Thirteen has at last come by its own. The cloud has been removed from it; its character is reinstated. In fact, it is positively in favor. So far from being considered unlucky, it is now actually regarded in the light of a mascot, for the newest charm is a "13" in precious stones or even in plain gold. On many a motor it can now be seen, and the hostess who finds herself with 13 guests on her hands for dinner or supper need no longer fear to face them. The thirteenth will now be justified in considering herself or himself the luckiest person present.

Soldiers Well Provided For.
The barracks which have been recently erected at Windsor at a cost of £50,000 are on a luxurious scale. In addition to separate sleeping cubicles for each man, there are dining halls, billiard rooms, recreation rooms, libraries and studies, as well as a theater. In the lavatories hot and cold water is provided for washing, and there are separate rooms adjoining for shaving purposes. There are also good baths.—Tit-Bits.

Art Enthusiasm.
"Does the public of Crimmon Gulch remember my previous visit?" asked Mr. Stormington Barnes. "It does," replied Franco Rob. "And is it waiting to receive me with open arms." "Not exactly open arms. It looks more like a case of concealed weapons."

Brave Act Rewarded.
For averting a railroad disaster, George Lloyd, an employe of the Western Railroad company, was the other day presented with a check by the directors of the company in recognition of his bravery. During a grant landslide near Aberdeen, the Powell Duffryn company's colliery tip or waste dump was washed down from the side of an adjoining mountain and completely blocked the line. A train from Swansea had just left Aberdeen and on discovering the landslide Lloyd rushed towards Aberdeen, falling and stumbling amongst the wreckage, and eventually he managed to gain the clear tracks and placed detonators on the rails so that the engine stopped within 50 yards of the obstruction.—London Mail.

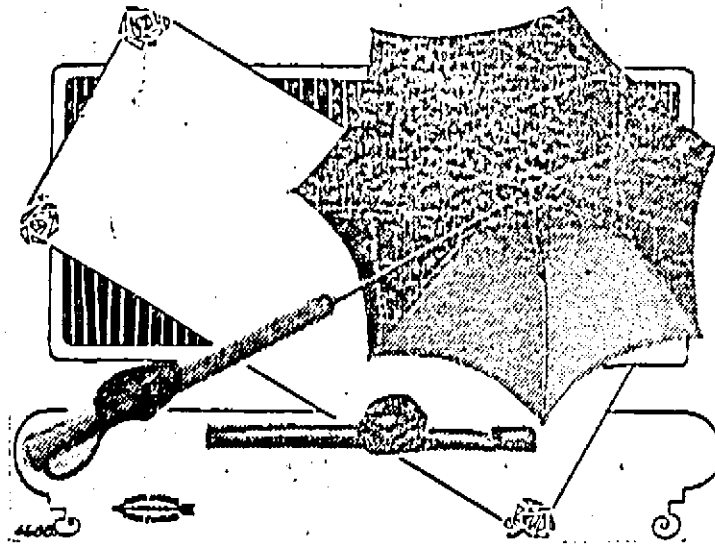

Fable on Jupiter and the Bee.
A bee from Mount Hymettus, the queen of the hive, accended to Olympus to present to Jupiter some fresh honey from her comb. Jupiter, delighted with the offering of honey, promised to give whatever she should ask. She therefore besought him, saying, "Give me, I pray thee, a sting that if any mortal shall approach to take my honey, I may kill him." Jupiter was much displeased, for he loved much the race of man, but could not refuse the request on account of his promise. He thus answered the bee: "You shall have your request; but it will be at the peril of your own life. For if you use your sting, it shall remain in the wound you make, and then you will die from the loss of it."

Why Ties Are Burned.
This, once seeing a lot of pretty fair, though used, railroad ties being burned by the orders of the assistant superintendent, inquired why and was told that if old ties were sold or given away it would cost the railroad a pretty penny, because gratters would soon find every defect in ties and then when there were no more with defects good ties would be thought rotten and taken out and sold or "given away." The railroad had to order them burned so that any ties found away from the track would be known to be stolen.

Threw Cars From Track.
The West Cline (Ireland) railroad line was the scene of a peculiar accident lately. At a crossing a large number of cattle coming into a fair at Ennis were held up by the closing of the gates while the morning train from Ennis was passing. One of the bonks, becoming frightened, jumped over a stile on the line. The driver of the engine at once shut off steam and the train slowed up, but not before the bullock had been killed. The engine kept the rails, but two empty cars were capsized and badly damaged.

Called for Large Amount of Wire.
Millions of feet of wire were used for railroad signals for the Pennsylvania terminal and tunnel in New York.

Has Much New York Real Estate.
The Pennsylvania railroad company is one of the largest holders of real estate in the city of New York.

Every woman pretends to carry a dainty parasol instead of lugging about an umbrella on sunny days, yet the umbrella must be a part of one's traveling equipment, whether or no. There is a new traveler's parasol, pictured here, which may be closed up, folded and packed in a long bamboo cylinder, half the length of the opened parasol,—which has the long handle so fashionable now. The bamboo cylinder may be packed in a trunk or suit case or strapped to the umbrella which is one's companion on the train, and when removed from its case the parasol, unrolled, makes an attractive accessory to a pretty gown.

RUSSIA'S NEED OF RAILROADS

The Duma Considers a Bill to Allow Private Lines to Be Built in the Empire.

The Russian government has introduced a bill in the duma permitting railways to be built by private companies. It states that in Russia the railroad mileage is only one-tenth that of America and one-fifth that of western Europe. The supporters of the proposition claim that the increase of the Russian network of railroads is absolutely necessary for the further development of the productive forces of the country. The government on its own account cannot, it is stated, increase its railroad building program, owing to a large number of unavoidable expenditures, hence it finds it necessary to grant concessions for private railway construction.

To private railroads of importance and significance the issuance of government guarantees will be permitted, the administration accepting the capital of shareholders not exceeding 3 per cent. These private railroad companies will receive remuneration for the outlays made on preliminary railway surveys and determination of directions and locations from the capital stock. The time limit for the purchase of a private line by the imperial government is twenty-five years.

Marjorie Whitlock.
New York City.—Miss Marjorie Whitlock is an excellent representative of the modern society girl, her physical development being as marked as her dainty beauty. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Morris Whitlock, who are members of exclusive "sets" in the East. When Miss Ann Douglas Graham was married to Jay Gould, Jr., Miss Whitlock was one of the bridesmaids. In the picture she is shown with the gown and hat that she wore on the occasion of the wedding.

An Ambition.

Even a Gasoline Caravan.
"One by one, slowly but none the less surely," says a letter from Russia to the London Globe, "things old and venerable are pushed aside, destroyed or disregarded by trade, progress and other relentless instruments of change. The latest in the attack on the Asiatic caravan, by means of which the best tea has been brought from China, packed in airtight metal cans, across the Great Gobi desert of Central Asia to Russia, crossing on route three ranges of high mountains. This picturesque transportation system will soon give way before the motor car. A line running at regular intervals has already been established and two weeks time is cut off, while the tea is better because of the shortened time of exposure."

Chief of Police Issues Warning
Against Use of Firearms With Blank Cartridges July 3d,
4th and 5th.

Chief of Police George Appleby has placed the ban on the use of revolvers with blank cartridges during the military celebration and convention of the United Spanish War Veterans in this city on July 3d, 4th and 5th. In this city, and has announced that the law, which forbids the discharge of firearms within the city limits, will be strictly enforced, the offenders placed in jail and their weapons confiscated. About fourteen weapons were taken from men last year who violated the law and the same rule will be put in effect this year. His statement with regard to the matter is given below:

"Everyone knows, or should know, that it is a violation of the law to carry a gun, but still every day someone asks me if I am going to allow revolver shooting with blank cartridges on the 3d, 4th and 5th, to which I answer, absolutely, 'No!'"

"Anyone caught shooting blank cartridges or carrying a gun will be arrested, put in jail, and the gun confiscated. If you want revolver practice go outside the city limits. I also ask that every kind of fireworks be suspended during the time of the different parades, as it will eliminate accidents."

(Signed),
"GEO. M. APPLEBY,
Chief of Police."

ORATORIO WAS BIG MUSICAL SUCCESS

Musical Entertainment At Congregational Church Last Evening Was One of Finest Ever Held Here.

Gaia's oratorio, "The Holy City," presented by the Choral Union and Young People's choir of the Congregational church in the auditorium of the church last evening was one of the brilliant musical successes of the season. The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Zoe Pearl Park, musical director of the church, gave a splendid exhibition of musical talent and the oratorio was a great triumph for Mrs. Park. Two talented singers from Chicago, assisted the local chorists in the rendition of the program. Mrs. Tewksbury, soprano and George Ashby, tenor, sang with the choir. The "Meditation" and "Powerful" oratorio, their contralto and soprano voices blending perfectly in the song. Mr. Brewster scored a hit with the music lovers of the city with his dramatic solo, "I Send My Heart To Thee." "Ah, Love, But A Day," and "The Years At The Spring," by Protheroe. "Come to the Garden, Love," as sung by Mrs. Tewksbury proved most delightful. The singing of Len Matthews, as bass, was pleasing. Miss Ada Pond's work as accompanist was worthy of much praise. In the afternoon at three Mr. H. August Smith of Chicago, gave a most interesting talk on camp life for boys and girls. He illustrated his talk with handsome views and his audience proved most enthusiastic over his talk.

SCOUTS ON BICYCLES ON TRIP IN COUNTRY

Fifteen Members of the Boy Scouts Under Secretary Reader, To Make Short Cycle Tour Today.

In view of the fact that there will be no drill of the Boy Scouts this evening, Charles Reader, secretary and commissioner of the local organization, has planned a bicycle trip into the country for about five o'clock. At the drill last night at the Washington school, fifteen of the scouts identified their intention of taking the ride.

The "hike" will extend over a course of about four miles in all, and will probably be in the direction of the cemetery road. The idea will not be to establish a record for time but orderly and uniform riding will characterize the trip. They will return to the city at 6:30. This will mark the beginning of this feature of the general movement here, it being the first time that any of the boys have taken a trip under the direction of a leader. From now on, however, it will be the endeavor of the leaders to plan something of the kind every week. This will go hand-in-hand with the first lessons in woodcraft, swimming and care of the injured which is the next step after the perfection in the drill. In the latter line the scouts are becoming more and more proficient daily.

Plans are being made to appoint several young men of the city as scout masters, whose duty it will be to have charge of the different divisions on the trips. Mr. Reader is now engaged in securing men for these positions and their names will be announced later.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Automobile Party: Charles Cullen and family, of Edgerton, and Mr. and Mrs. Wright, of Libertyville, Ill., stopped in the city this morning on their way to Delavan. From there the latter will go to their home and the former will return to Edgerton.

One Drunk: Joe Callahan, an old offender, was arraigned in municipal court this morning for drunkenness and went to jail for eight days in default of payment of a fine of $4 and costs. Callahan, who has been up before the court under the name of Kelly, has well-to-do relatives in Milwaukee, but on account of his despatch has been cast off by them.

Sunday School Picnic: The annual picnic of the Presbyterian Sunday school is being held today at Yost's Park, a large number of the members going to the park this morning in a special car and trailer at ten o'clock. A large crowd is attending the Methodist Sunday school picnic up the river, the boat conveying the picnicers to the grounds at nine and half past ten o'clock this morning and at one o'clock this afternoon. The members of St. Paul's German Lutheran church Sunday school held an outing up the river yesterday.

Judge Here Tomorrow: Judge Grimm will be in the city tomorrow morning at which time he will hear the arguments in the case of the Hans Creek Drainage district. Several other matters will probably come before him at this time.

Badly Injured: A friendly "scrap" between George Jacobson, 15 years old, of 266 South River street, and a neighbor's son, Victor Milloy, of the same age, developed into a stone-throwing match in which George received an ugly scalp wound and was knocked unconscious for several minutes at about 8 o'clock last night. Dr. M. A. Cunningham was summoned and dressed the wound. The boy is resting easily today and will be out in a day or two.

BROTHER OF GLAVIS IN TROUBLE.

Wade H. Ellis, the famous "trust-buster," has been retained as counsel in the case against George O. Glavis, charged with embezzlement.

Washington, D. C.—Geo. O. Glavis, brother of the Glavis who figured in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, has been arrested in Chicago on a charge of embezzlement. This incident becomes of national interest because of the fact that the embezzlement charges referred to are alleged to have a direct bearing on evidence said to have been secured by Glavis, which evidence would prove conclusively that a certain prominent senator had accepted money from corporation lobbyists. The case is brought by the Chicago Tribune to receive certain books, documents and papers which it is alleged the newspapers employed Glavis to secure. It is alleged that Glavis secured these papers and now refuses to turn them over to the paper. Wade H. Ellis, former assistant attorney general, has been retained as counsel for the prosecution in the case.

ATTORNEY'S ARGUMENTS IN CIVIL CASES GIVEN TODAY.

Action of Adolph Knudson Against John Milton and Gust. Vlachos Taken Under Adjudgment Until Tomorrow.

Arguments in the civil case of Adolph Knudson against John Milton and Gust. Vlachos over an account alleged to be due for painting done at the Orphanum theatre were presented before Judge Field, in municipal court this morning at three o'clock. The case was taken under advisement by the court until tomorrow morning when the judge will give his decision. The plaintiff was represented in court by Attorney Charles H. Lange and Attorney F. C. Burpee conducted the case for the defense.

SUING FOR COMMISSION IN REAL ESTATE DEAL.

In Judge Tallman's court today, W. J. Little and E. J. Bullock are suing John Weber for $150, which sum represents the percentage which the plaintiffs claim as their rightful reward as acting agents of the defendant in the sale of forty acres of land in the town of Darmouth. It seems that there was an agreement that the plaintiffs should get two per cent of the $8,000, the price of the farm, as their commission, and they claim the farm was sold and that they never received their commission.

HOLDS KEY TO VICE REPORT.

Chicago, Ill.—Dean Summer, of St. Paul, Minn., head of the Chicago Police Department, holds the key to the report turned in by that commission which, if known, would lead, it is said, to the greatest scandal society circles have ever known. The vice commission devoted its time to studying the levee district in Chicago and to ascertaining who the owners of the various buildings where vice was committed, were. It is said that their report shows that many of these houses are owned by men of high social standing and influential church workers of the city. In order to shield these parties the report was handed in with hieroglyphics instead of names inserted, so that no individuals are mentioned. It is thought that Dean Summer has the key to this report carefully locked away in a safe deposit vault and the aldermen of the city are demanding that he turn over to them the key.

IS SHE THE SUBJECT OF A GREAT RELIGIOUS FANATICISM OR THE FOUNDER OF A NEW RELIGION?

Mildred Bridges, sketched in court while giving her testimony in the See case.

Chicago, Ill.—The trial of Evelyn Arthur See, self appointed prophet of the "Absolute Life" is attracting more attention than, perhaps, any other case of its kind ever recorded.

The prosecution maintains that See is the most immoral man on record.

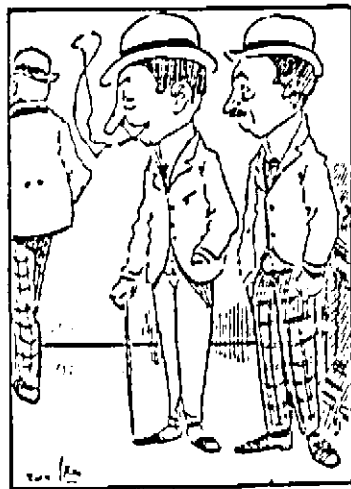

The defense claims that he is perfect in every respect, a model, and the founder of a perfect religion.

Mildred Bridges in her testimony on the stand has in every way sacrificed herself to defend See. On the result of her testimony will largely depend whether the reformer is to spend the next few years in a cell or to be the idol of his converts.

Increasing Life of Tungsten.
The hot wire system for tungsten lamps is being used on eastern railroads to minimize breakage. A small current, keeping the filament at a dull red, is always on the line, thus giving longer life to the filament, says Popular Electricity. The lamps are lighted from storage batteries at 60 volts, this being reduced to four volts when the lamps are extinguished.

Airship Mutiny.
The man accused of inciting mutiny on the airship was heavily ironed and brought before the captain. "Was he caught in the act?" asked the captain, when he had glared menacingly upon the culprit. "Yes, sir," replied the first mate. "I caught him in the act of tucking up cards bearing the mutinous expression, 'Back to the land!'"

Pleasure in Everything.

CONGRESSMAN WHO HAS HELPED RIP THE TARIFF QUESTION WIDE OPEN AGAIN. Washington, D. C.—The whole tariff question was ripped wide open as a result of the action of the senate in adopting the resolution by Senator Gore directing the finance committee to report the wool bill by July 10th. This instruction is unprecedented in the history of the upper house and made possible a coalition of insurgent republicans and democrats. It means that the senate will act on the Canadian reciprocity agreement but more important still, it will follow the lead of the House in revising the wool, cotton and other schedules which it is the intention of Speaker Clark and his floor managers to pass. Among the sixteen insurgent republicans who voted for Gore, many new names are found in the insurgent column. Among these are Senator Townsend of Michigan; Senator Jones of Washington; and Senator Nelson of Minnesota. The latter has always been a low tariff man.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

D OES the college girl who wants to hear of some way to earn money, this summer think that I have forgotten her?

For I haven't. To prove it here are some suggestions that have accumulated in the pigeon hole of my desk which is dedicated to her.

"Young mothers who are tied down with even one baby," writes one correspondent, who incidentally is the possessor of two, and therefore feels very warmly on the subject, "would all like to find there was one refined reliable person to take care of their children for an afternoon or an evening, so that the parents can go out. Such a person ought to be in great demand and make a great success. I speak from experience in my own neighborhood where it is only possible so far as I know to get the women who work by the day."

This suggestion was meant for the "unusual occupations for women" column, but it seems to me that this would also be very good summer work for the college girl. Incidentally let me add that I have received such suggestions from several sources, so I am pretty sure there is a niche in every neighborhood for such work.

Why couldn't the young college girl send out some cards to her young married friends, stating in some pretty way that she would be willing to do such work?

"A librarian friend tells me," writes another correspondent, "that one of her helpers who learned how to catalogue when the town built a free library, had earned a large sum of spending money cataloguing linen closets for wealthy summer people."

She adds that the young woman used a system similar to that in her library and the results were more satisfactory.

"Wealthy people with small libraries might take kindly to the services of a cataloguer, since in lending books so many valuable copies are lost, especially in the houses which are occupied but half the year."

The Pontiac Brush Co., of Pontiac, Michigan, contributes to this column the announcement that it could use a few more young people for old people, too, for that matter, as agents for its sanitary brushes.

Those who would work in "Western New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan could be handled to the best advantage, as the expense of getting shipments to them would be less than to points farther away," says the company. "However, we will not turn down a good agent even if he comes from Alaska."

This company does not make extravagant promises to its agents, but says that it has several making very good money.

SOUR CREAM AND ITS USES.

There are many cooks who will not take the trouble to save small quantities of sour cream. It is really a valuable article of food and may be used in innumerable ways in food combinations, saving butter, sweet cream and other shortening.

Sour cream makes a good salad dressing, a filling for pie together with raisins and eggs. Gluggerbreads, cookies of all kinds and fried cakes are always to be depended upon for keeping qualities when sour cream is used in their composition. Here are a few ways of using sour cream in cakes:

Nut Cake.—Take three-fourths of a cup of sour cream, one cupful of sugar, one and a half cupfuls of flour, one cup of chopped English walnut meats, one egg, one-half teaspoonful each of salt and soda; flavor to taste. Bake in a loaf nearly an hour in a moderate oven.

Feather Cake.—Take a cup of thick sour cream, one cupful of sugar, two cupfuls of flour sifted with a teaspoonful of soda and one of baking powder, a half teaspoon of salt, one egg, a teaspoonful of vanilla. Bake in a loaf.

Spice Cake.—To three-fourths of a cup of sour milk add the same amount of sugar, one and a half cupfuls of flour, two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, a teaspoonful each of baking powder, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg, sifted with flour, and a half teaspoon of salt and soda, one whole egg and the yolks of two. Bake in layers and put together with boiled frosting.

Cream Cakes.—Use the above recipe and bake the cakes in gem tins, sprinkling over each a little granulated sugar and putting a raisin in the center before baking.

When writing your recipe out write on one side of the paper only and mail to the Feature Editor. You can send two or three in. If you wish, say that the judges may pass on one of them. DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

CAUSES OF LA GRIPPE.

La Grippe is an infectious disease easily acquired when the system is in condition favorable to its development. The best means of prevention and the natural cure are, ample exercise in the open air, but not to the point of exhaustion, abundant use of water, internally and externally, omission of starchy foods (potatoes and bread), and in extreme cases, an exclusive diet of nuts and bran bread for a few days. The conditions favorable to the development of the disease seem to be a condition of the blood caused chiefly by excessive starch eating with lack of exercise, and defective elimination. The brown part of wheat is rich in the mineral eliminators and nuts are free from starch.

About Peas.

I planted beans expecting peas to blossom there in May; the funny papers have a wheeze that things turn out that way. But where I planted beans, I find that only beans have grown. There is no doubt that things turn out sometimes as they are sown.—Washington Herald.

TALK TO HOUSE-KEEPERS

"No man can gather cherries in Kent at the season of Christmas."

—Longfellow.

The season of cherries is again at hand, and as this is a "cherry year," we all expect to enjoy some of the various delectable dishes which may be made with this deliciously tart fruit.

First and foremost in the hearts of most men comes cherry pie. While all housekeepers know how to make this standby, a few suggestions may not be out of place. A heaping tablespoon of cornstarch mixed with the sugar which is added to the cherries, thickens the juice. For the top crust it is pretty to lay narrow strips of pastry crisscross like on cranberry pie. If a few paper tubes or pieces of macaroni are set upright between the strips, the juice will boil up into them, instead of running over the oven.

Cherry Betty makes a delicious dessert that the whole family will appreciate. Butter a baking dish generously, and put a half inch layer of crumbs in the bottom. On this spread a thick layer of pitted cherries and sugar, allowing measure for measure of fruit and sugar if the cherries are sour. Add another layer of crumbs, then fruit and sugar, continuing thus until the dish is filled, the last layer being of crumbs dotted with butter. Bake in a slow oven for an hour and a half, keeping it covered during the first part of the baking. Chill and serve with cream.

Another cherry pudding that takes less baking and that may be varied by the addition of other fruits, is a Cherry Melange. Sift stale bread very thin, toast thoroughly, and butter liberally. Line the bottom and sides of a baking dish with the toast and fill in the center with alternate layers of strawberries or raspberries and pitted cherries, generously sprinkled with sugar. The fruit should be well heaped up and packed as it shrinks in the baking. Bake half an hour in a moderate oven. Chill, and cover the top with whipped cream, garnishing with some of the whole, fresh fruit. Serve with cream.

Cherry Charlotte is a deliciously dainty dessert that deserves a trial. After putting a pin of cherries, roll the pie in a cup of water for quarter of an hour. Remove the pins, add the fruit and two thirds of a cup of sugar, and boil gently until tender. Rub through a sieve and let stand where it will keep warm. Meanwhile, soak half a package of granulated gelatin in half a cup of cold water, then cook slowly in a double boiler until it is thoroughly dissolved. Add this to the fruit pulp, and let it stand until it cools and begins to thicken. Then add a pint of cream previously whipped to a stiff froth, and mix carefully. Turn into a glass serving dish and garnish with the whole cherries.

Cherry Conserva will prove very popular among even the most conservative housekeepers. Pit seven pounds of ripe cherries, and cook them in a granite or aluminum sauce pan for fifteen minutes, adding boiling water if necessary to keep them from boiling dry. Then add five pounds of granulated sugar, half a pound of peeled raisins, and the juice and pulp of six oranges. Cook until the mixture is as thick as marmalade, stirring well to prevent scorching. Just before removing from the fire, add half a pound of broken (not chopped) nut meats. Turn into jelly glasses, and cover with melted paraffine.

A highly ornamental and extremely pleasing salad is made with the large, fancy black cherries. Remove the pits and stuff with nut meats. Place a crisp, curly lettuce leaf on each plate, heap on six or eight of the stuffed cherries and cover with a rich mayonnaise dressing well blended with whipped cream.

Borrowed Bridal Finery.

In Norway every parish house has a set of ornaments for the temporary use of the bride, including a showy coronal and girdle, so that the poorest women in the land appeared for one day in their life in a costume which they probably thought equal to that of a queen. The museum of national antiquities at Copenhagen contains a number of such sets of bridal decorations, which were at one time used in Denmark.

Jelly Roll Recipe

Only Two Eggs Required

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

This Jelly Roll is fast becoming very popular on account of the way it keeps fresh. With proper handling it should keep fresh a whole week, providing it isn't eaten up in the meantime, for it is every bit as good as it looks.

K.C. Jelly Roll

One cup sifted flour; scant half teaspoonful salt; 2 level teaspoonfuls K.C. Baking Powder; grated rind of 1 lemon; 2 eggs beaten lightly; 1 cup sugar; hot milk; glass of jelly; powdered sugar.

Beat the sugar into the eggs; add the lemon rind, then the flour, sifted three times with the salt and baking powder; and, lastly, the milk. Bake in a buttered dripping pan; turn out on a damp cloth, trim off the crisp edges; spread with jelly and turn over and over into a roll while still warm. Dredge the top with powdered sugar.

Hot milk used in the jelly roll enables it to be rolled without danger of cracking. Have the milk scalding hot, also be careful to have the eggs and sugar beaten together until very light and creamy. Bake in a moderate oven.

K.C. Jelly Roll is illustrated on page thirty-two of the new and handsomely illustrated 64-page K.C. Cook's Book, which may be secured free by sending the certificate packed in every 25-cent can of K.C. Baking Powder to the Jagers Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.

FLETCHERISM.

Ever hear of Fletcher?

He's the bully boy you hear of. He's the one who always chews All his food an hour, because There is not the slightest question of it's a first-aid to digestion.

No man ever lived so sick. If to God's idea he'll stick. His rules ain't so hard to follow. Just be careful what you swallow. To avoid chills and cold, Always swallow your soup. When you sit down at the table, Stay as long as you are able. Though your boss may well raise you. And you're late and lose your job; When you should arrive at seven And your breakfast till eleven. Never mind a thing like that. Fletcherize and you'll grow fat. Thirty minutes for a biscuit. Never mind the time, but risk it. Ninety minutes for a chop. Chew ahead and never stop. Even though the clock be striking;

Even though the time be striking. When you tackle fish stew. Masticate an hour or two. When upon the train you travel. "Mind the enders and the gravel." Brakeman yells out at the bunch: "Fletcherize here for lunch." Chomp right off and start to eating. Even though the time be fleeting. Chew your sandwich with a will. Chew your coffee, too, until You've completed mastication. Do not dare to leave the station. Though the train, alas, aches. Is full ten miles down the track. What's one train beside the question Of a good and free digestion? Of there will be more riding, you know. But with lives it is not so. And a man is sure a runny if he disregards his tummy. Railroad sandwiches abhor. They have killed more men than war. And the only way to ment 'em Is to chew 'em when you eat 'em. Never mind how tedious this. Always stop to Fletcherize. There is only one exception. Don't get angry, never mad. Never Fletcherize the rag.

Ideals in Education.
"The entire system of education, both here and in America, seems to require reconstruction from bottom to top; it would be well, if I may say so, if we could scrap the whole wretched academic show and start afresh, in order that it may be greatly improved in quality and shortened in duration. Two ideals should be kept in view—we should aim at the development of individuality and encourage productivity." — Professor Armstrong (Eng.)

Considerable Halibut.
A halibut caught recently in Thursto bay, measured seven and one-half feet long and over three feet broad, and weighed over two hundred and fifty pounds. It was for the biggest fish caught off the north of Scotland for many years, and was sold for over $1.

BEACHEY MAKES FLIGHT OVER FALLS AND RAPIDS

Aviator in Biplane is First Man to Clip Mist Clouds of Niagara.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 28.—Sweeping down from an immense height in a shower of rain, Lincoln Beachey in his biplane passed over the Horseshoe Falls, under the steel arch bridge, on down the gorge almost to the Whirlpool Rapids, then rose, mounted again and, shoving the world of cliff, landed safely and unscathed on the Canadian side.

It was the first time an airplane had cut through the air currents and mist clouds and leaping foam caused by Niagara's falls and rapids, which have lured so many adventurers to their death.

Throngs on the American and Canadian shores gazed with fascination at the aviator as he rose to a height of about 2,000 feet, twice circled above the eartnet and then made the long swoop toward the narrow passage under the bridge.

His biplane came racing over the Horse Shoe fall so low that he was lost to view for an instant, and then winged close to the water. It seemed almost to skim the water as he made the bridge passage.

Beachey continued on down the gorge almost to the whirlpool rapids, clearing the water by not more than thirty feet, before soaring aloft again. "It was the most exciting trip of my life," said Beachey after he had landed safely.

To add to the difficulties of Beachey's flight, a light rain began to fall as he started.

NEW FRENCH CABINET FORMED

Callieux Succeeds Monis as Premier and Minister of Interior.

Paris, June 28.—The new French cabinet was definitely constituted and Joseph Callieux, the premier, who succeeds M. Monis, presented his colleagues to President Fallieres, who signed the nomination decrees. The cabinet is composed as follows:

M. Callieux—Premier and minister of the interior.
Jean Cruppi—Justice.
Justin G. De Selves—Foreign affairs.

L. A. Klotz—Finance.
Adolphe Messimy—War.
Theophile Delcasse—Marine.

Julius Steeg—Public instruction.
M. Angoulême—Public works.
M. Coudan—Commerce.

Julius Pams—Agriculture.
M. Lohrman—Colonies.
Rene Renoult—Labor.

The members of the cabinet are about equally divided on the proportional representation issue, which is taken to indicate that the new government's policy will be to find a compromise acceptable to all parties.

FAIL TO FIX RECIPROCITY VOTE.

Senator La Follette Enters Objection to Proposal by Penrose.

Washington, June 28.—An attempt by Chairman Penrose of the senate finance committee to fix July 21 for a vote on the Canadian reciprocity bill was defeated in the senate through Senator La Follette's objection.

The debate indicated that some of the Republican insurgents and some Democrats will fight to have the wool revolution and the free bill passed first so that the president will have to act on them before the senate passes the reciprocity bill.

A severe wind rain and hail storm swept over Washington, it blew sixty miles an hour about the capital, causing so much disturbance that the senate adjourned. Senator Borah was speaking and his colleagues found it impossible to hear him.

ASK COAL LAND INFORMATION.

Senate Adopts Resolution Requesting
Taft to Furnish Data.

Washington, June 28.—As a sequel to the decision of the interior department canceling the Cunningham Alaskan coal land claims, Senator Penrose of Washington introduced a resolution, which was immediately passed, calling upon the president for all available information as to the alleged effort of the Controller Railroad company to monopolize the water front of Controller bay in Alaska. This bay is the natural outlet of the rich Bering river coal fields.

AVENGING GIRL SHOOT THREE.

Kills Married Admirer and Wounds Two Bystanders.

New York, June 28.—Alma Sagharo, twenty, and comely, met Anthony Fiverson, an admirer, in the street and upbraided him for not telling her that he was married. A crowd gathered as she berated him and by mutterings of approval urged her to greater agitation. She whipped out from the folds of her dress a revolver, and fired three times. Each bullet struck a different man. Fiverson was one of the wounded and died later. The others may die.

Iowa Music Teachers Meet.

Davenport, Ia., June 28.—The Society of Music Teachers of Iowa met here today in its sixteenth annual convention, the morning being given up to round tables on piano strings and harmony conducted respectively by Dr. A. Rommel of Mt. Pleasant, Wis., and Merrill of Cedar Falls and H. W. Matlack. This afternoon the high school pupils gave a concert and an automobile ride to the arsenal followed. TAFT COMMENDED BY MEDICS.

Institute of Homeopathy Approves
Attacks on Nostrums.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., June 28.—A resolution adopted by the American Institute of Homeopathy commends President Taft for his recent message urging an amendment to the pure food and drug law to prohibit the labeling of nostrums as cures, regardless of their curative effects.

The resolution congratulated the country on "the fact that its chief executive office is held by one who is careful, not only of its political and commercial interests, but of its standard of medical education, and by the aid of his influence protects it against fraud and the injuries that would result from honoring the teachings of the acknowledged scientific schools of the country and of the practitioners of medicine and surgery."

PLAN DIRECT VOTE CONFERENCE.

Three Senators Named to See Committee From Lower House.

Washington, June 28.—The first step toward the settlement of the differences between the senate and the house on the joint resolution providing for the election of senators by direct vote of the people was taken when the senate decided to grant a conference and appointed Senators Clark of Wyoming, Nelson of Minnesota and Bacon of Georgia as conferees to meet a similar number of members of the house, yet to be appointed.

The fight in conference will be over the acceptance of the amendment by Senator Driestow and adopted in the senate which retains to the federal government the right to control the election of senators.

Cornell Makes a Spurt.

Up to this time the Ithacans had roved a steady 32, but now Cornell showed an order through his indubitable meekness. Bowen, the big stroke, put just a little more power, just a little more rapidly, into his sweep. The men behind him responded to the urge. Not inch by inch this time, but by several feet to an awing Cornell moved up. In twenty or thirty strokes, about 200 yards from the finish, they drew up on even terms.

Two Killed in St. Paul Wreck.

Number of Passengers Are Injured at Bardwell, Wis.

Delaan, Wis., June 28.—Two trainmen were killed and a number of passengers injured in a wreck on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road at Bardwell. Those killed were James Dunn, engineer, and Freeman Husey, both of Madison.

Council of Grain Exchanges.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 28.—A midsummer meeting of the Council of North American Grain Exchanges, to last two days, began here today. This year big produce exchanges now belonging to the council, and all are represented. Hiram N. Sager of Chicago is presiding and on the program are addresses by President W. P. Bishop of the Milwaukee chamber of commerce on the relation of the press to the modern grain exchange, Dr. Robert Wahl of Chicago on the "Improvement of American Barley," and Prof. R. A. Moore of the agricultural station at Madison on the "Breeding and Dissemination of Pure Bred Grains." Topics for informal discussion include the elimination of "corners," rectification of demurrage and a federal bucket shop law.

A MEDICINE WHICH WILL DO WHAT THEY SAY

John Lloyd of Milwaukee Was Dead on His Feet For Four Years.

"Tona Vita" Has Made A
New Man Out of Him.

One sensational statement after another is being made in connection with "Tona Vita," the new tonic that is accomplishing such remarkable results in Milwaukee. John Lloyd of that city had this to say:

"This is the first medicine I have ever taken that really does what they say. I have been dead on my feet for four years. Since last October I have been hard for me to work at all. Everything seemed to be wrong with me. I didn't get well of sleep well, and I had no energy at all. If I stood any length of time my back felt as though it was going to break, and I would have to sit down. I had a narrow skin and had no life in me. My stomach was in bad shape and my heart would beat rapidly at the slightest exertion or excitement."

"I went to the drug store to try this new medicine, and one of the doctors told me I had nervous debility. I got the medicine, and it's the best on earth. It helped me right away, and has made another man out of me. When I think how I felt when I first began dragging in the store, and now I feel now, I'd like to find some poor fellow that feels like I did and buy him a bottle of this 'Tona Vita' and say to him, 'This is worth more to you than all the money in Milwaukee.'"

One of the physicians who are explaining the nature of the new popular tonic to the public, in speaking of Mr. Lloyd's statement, said: "Few of the public fully realize as yet what a wonderful medicine 'Tona Vita' is. In Europe a similar preparation has been endorsed by some of the greatest personalities, including the surgeon-general of the French army, but the medicine is new to the United States. However, before we leave this city the hundreds of half-sick men and women who are victims of nervous debility, and the general ill-health that this disease produces, will realize what a blessing the tonic is."

"Chief among the symptoms of nervous debility are lack of energy, stomach and bowel troubles, nervousness, depression of spirits, sleeplessness, little vitality, headaches, dull pain in the back, poor circulation, cold feet, dizzy spells, spots before the eyes and uneasy sleep. To any individual suffering from these symptoms 'Tona Vita' is a positive relief."

"Tona Vita" is a positive relief. The chief ingredients of this medicine, the most powerful and best laxative, are obtained in this medicine. Lee's Rhubarb Laxative will not harm the weakest constitution and is therefore ideal for children. It is very pleasant to the taste. The Smith Drug Co. has secured the agency in Janesville for these celebrated preparations.

GO IN FOR DAIRYING IN THE "Stanley Country"

The cut-over Hardwood Lands in the Stanley Country have all the natural conditions necessary for successful dairying, such as climate, soil, pure water and an abundance of clover and wild grasses. When the timber is cut, the clover becomes King and creates pasture unsurpassed anywhere, thus paying for the expense of preparing the soil for the raising of small grains, etc. Wisconsin has over one thousand creameries and nearly two thousand cheese factories, which is one-half of the creameries and one-sixth of the cheese factories in the whole United States.

THE STUMP PROBLEM IS NOW SOLVED

This was formerly the one obstacle that the new settler in Wisconsin had to contend with. What drainage and irrigation did for the south and west, the powerful land clearing machines, clearing from three to five acres a day, will do for the cut-over lands in Wisconsin.

Why go thousands of miles away from your old home and settle on the expensive lands of the west and south when you can get fertile lands can be had at $15.00 per acre in the high priced communities within a few hours' ride from the world's best markets. Rabbits Unearth Loot.

Jeweled rings, gold watches, muffs, chains, and other valuable articles stolen recently from a store in Milwaukee (Wis.), were recovered the other day in a remarkable manner. The burglars had chosen a hollow log as a safe and innocent-looking "bank" for the loot; but while two young farmers were rabbit hunting, a rabbit took refuge in the fallen tree, and in the effort to dislodge the little animal the hunters discovered the treasure.

His Last Request.

Two men were to be hanged for horsestealing. The place selected was the middle of a trestle bridge spanning a river. The rope was not securely tied on the first victim to be dropped, and the knot slipped; the man fell into the river and immediately swam for the shore. As they were adjusting the rope on the second hanged man remarked: "Say, will ye be sure and tie that good and tight, 'cause I can't swim."

BRITZ HEADQUARTERS

BY MARION BARBER
ILLUSTRATIONS BY R. H. H.

Sands maintained a dignified silence as a pair of bluecoats, stumbling over a hearth rug in the library, came into the suite, and at a sign from Britz, seized the shrinking Oriental. One by one the prisoners were lifted, neck and heels, and taken to the patrol wagon. Britz, of course, could have had the bandages about their feet removed, for it would have been perfectly safe to let those sturdy policemen escort them to the sidewalk in the ordinary way; but Britz was only human. The memory of the grip in which those very men had held him in the ride along Riverside Drive, of the smothering attitude of the desolate apartment house, and the struggle which had followed, came to him in the moment when he was on the point of ordering the unfettering of the captives. With a grin that struck terror to their clinging Eastern souls, he said to them:

"You two artists are so fond of silk that I guess I'll let you wear those ornaments a little while longer."

When the Hindoos were gone, Britz turned to Sands, and said with emphasis:

"If you experience a change of heart, Mr. Sands, I shall be very glad to hear from you in regard to what you found on your dark friend. Of course, since you are in your own rooms, and since the article was evidently stolen in this place by the fellow, I cannot compel you, without a great deal of trouble, to let me see it. It is not at all certain it would be worth my while to take that trouble; but it may dawn upon you before very long that it will be well worth your while. Mr. Sands, not only to let me see the thing, but to tell me everything you know about it. Goodnight, Mr. Sands."

And there was something ominous in the military click of the detective's heels as he walked across the echoing marquetry to the elevator.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Glistening Dance.

Doris Missioner was affected much more deeply than she would have thought probable when she read the ardent-breathed proposal of marriage from Huxton Sands. To say that it surprised her would be to set feminine intuition at a discount. She had known for a long time that Sands was in love with her, and on several occasions had been perilously close to the necessity of accepting or rejecting him.

Mrs. Missioner sent a reply to Sands with which, she told herself, he must be content for the present. When she had written it, she dressed for dinner rather earlier than usual, dined with only little Dorothy March as a visitor, and, after an hour or so spent in working out pretty problems with her youthful protégée, rang for her maid and was whisked away to a dance at the home of one of her dear friends. Mrs. Missioner's arrival was an instant triumph, a royal progress. She laughed and chatted with men who adored her, and with women who would have done the same if they had not been women.

Yet there was a monotony about it all to her, for although she was fond of society, she had seen the same faces, heard the same small talk, listened to the same music, and danced the same dances many, many times in the course of the season. Just when her vague wish for the unusual was shaping itself into a materialization of the grisly phantom, boredom, a little stir at the entrance to the ballroom heralded the arrival of a man who quickly drove the little drab devil of ennui from his perch upon Mrs. Missioner's aching shoulder.

The newcomer was a tall person, wearing the ordinary evening attire of gentlemen, with addition, however, of a showy turban that crowned his long black hair, like a wreath of snow upon a darkling mountain-side. It needed no second glance to tell Mrs. Missioner that they had already met. She knew it long before the Swami's dark eyes swung their twin searchlight glances in her direction. Mrs. Missioner recognized readily the mysterious stranger of the upper box. It was the first time she had seen him since the night in which she discovered the falsity of her jewels. For a moment, the sight of his swart face and piercing eyes recalled the pang with which she had learned of the loss of the Maharane diamond. So it was with a most gracious smile that she interrupted an introduction by her hostess and said:

"We have not quite recently," as she touched the tips of her white-gloved fingers to those of the Oriental. She went on: "You see I am more composed than at our last meeting; but then, I dare say, you were not troubled. Jewels, you know, mean so much to a woman."

"Some jewels mean more," Mrs. Missioner said the Swami suavely. "I thoroughly understand the sense of loss—in fact, the bereavement that came upon you when you found that beautiful necklace was not what you had supposed it to be."

"I rather imagine," Mrs. Missioner returned, "that you are not unfamiliar with the fact that it was the loss of one stone among the many which really grieved me."

"You are right, my good friend," returned the Swami. "I will not pretend to be ignorant of the value you attached to the central gem—the Maharane diamond. You are not alone—"

He checked himself abruptly. "It was a stone which well might command affection from its possessor. Time was when devotion would have been the word."

They were strolling across the floor as they talked, and in a corner distant from the music the widow seated herself on a Louis Quinze chair and said, almost coaxingly:

"I feel pretty sure you know more about the history of that jewel than I do."

"Indeed!" was the Swami's only concession.

"Yes, indeed and indeed," said the widow, with a gay little laugh. "Of course, a sage cannot be expected to occupy his thoughts with anything so frivolous as a diamond, however beautiful. Yet I am convinced that if you were to unbend from your meditations of the occult long enough to scan my memory, you would recall facts in connection with it that would be very interesting to me."

"May I inquire your reason for so thinking, dear madam?"

"It is a reasonable request on your part," she replied. "I remember my husband told me the stone had come from the treasure chest of the most beautiful queen in India—is not that why it is called the Maharane diamond?"

"It would be difficult to explain the name of every great diamond in Hindoostan," said the Swami evasively. "Since your husband gave you a history of the stone, surely you cannot doubt its authenticity."

"Oh, of course not," said the widow. "It is not in regard to its more recent history that I am questioning you. I think you know not only all the traditions hinging upon it, but that you are also conversant with its journeyings through your native land before it became the possession of the Maharane from whom my husband bought it."

"Yes, yes," Mrs. Missioner replied

the scholar, "I can imagine nothing more delectable than to carry out your slightest wish; but we of the East have things on which to concentrate our poor intelligences that are too grave to make room even for so interesting a diversion as a historical study among precious stones."

"Come, now!" urged the widow. "Please search your memory again. Unbend, Mr. Philosopher."

"Last you think me churlish, I do recall that your famous diamond at one time was regarded with religious reverence by a large number of my countrymen. Naturally, being a Brahmin, I am not in sympathy with idolatry. Therefore, I cannot tell you what degree of sanctity attaches to the stone in the eyes of those to whom it once belonged."

Had anyone been standing immediately behind Mrs. Missioner's chair in such a position as to look into the depths of the Oriental's eyes, instead of gazing upward at them and so missing the angle of truth as Mrs. Missioner from her position could only do, he would have seen in those ink depths a gleam that belied the suave disclaimer of the priest. Mrs. Missioner did not see it, and it was with no sensation of discomfort, therefore, that she returned the Swami's bow as he moved away to join a group of people.

Mrs. Missioner, in the most comfortable way in the world, laid her hand on the arm of Curtis Griewald, and reassured the floor to make up a set of lancers. She would have been uncomfortable, indeed, and even the self-centered Swami would have had a dim sense of something unusual, had they known that every word they exchanged was overheard by another swarthy man in Occidental attire who stood behind a screen. The second Easterner, he of the screen, gazed after Mrs. Missioner menacingly, and fixed his eyes the next moment on the broad back of the Swami with look freighted with suspicion. He shrugged his shoulders after the manner of a Frenchman lured by long contact with a Syrian restraint, and unpretentiously made a half-circle of the room until at a distance of a few yards he faced the turbaned scholar. His eyebrows lifted. The unspoken question was answered by an unnoticeable shake of the Swami's head. Further questions and answers flashed telepathically between those two pairs of vividly black eyes, and a little later the men themselves paused for an instant in passing—an instant that was not too short for an exchange of words.

"As I told you, Prince," said the Swami, "she was not a party to it."

"Your proof?"

"She believes her husband purchased it from Her Royal Highness—its namesake."

"And the other?"

"He is here."

"Watch him!"

"Assuredly."

"Are the disciples at work?"

"They must be finished by now. I expect the signal at any moment."

"It is well."

Griewald should have had one of the most enjoyable evenings of his life. Uncertain of her heart's aversion toward Sands, eagerness to avert the problem for a few hours made Mrs. Missioner seem more willing to be monopolized by the clubman than she would have been under any other circumstances. Who so debonair as Griewald when he led the beautiful widow through the mazes of the square dance, or floated with her about the room to the melody of the Gitanas waltz? Who more worthy of the homage due a conqueror as he paraded the wealthy woman's acquiescence to his open wooing the length and breadth of the most brilliant and exclusive ballroom in Fifth Avenue? It was not to be expected that Curtis, under such conditions, could be anything but gay. He glittered. His conversation sparkled like the receiver of a wireless instrument. Little Dorothy March was so impressed by the exceptional gallantry and animation of the palpably delighted clubman—so deeply impressed, in fact, that it was long ere the memory of that evening faded in more recent recollections of chocolate doughnuts and Forrest Theater matinees.

Now, the question is, would Curtis Griewald have been as light-hearted if he had known that a letter addressed to him was intercepted at the door of this same mansion in Millionaires' Row by a swarthy gentleman of Oriental aspect, who had dazzled the unsuspecting district messenger with a tip of gleaming gold? Whether he would remain a question. Griewald never knew it, but Prince Kananda, after a swift perusal of the note in a secluded smoking room, lost no time in letting the Swami know it, and it was worthy of note, though perhaps nobody noticed it, that within a very few minutes after their second meeting in the ballroom, Prince and scholar took their separate leave of their hosts, and sped northwesterly in closed automobiles that raced neck and neck far beyond the speed limit.

Little society reporters, in frocks of hidden gray, scribbled for the city editions of the morning papers the internationally important information that the ball of that evening was one of the most brilliant successes of the season, and that it was graced by the attendance of an Oriental prince whose departure was hastened by the receipt of a pressing cablegram from his royal father.

Not Really Essential.

Agnes, the tenth child, aged six, was a quiet little girl, taking a very serious view of life. She was carried to her mother's room to make the acquaintance of the eleventh arrival, a brother. Her attention was called to the beauty of this gift from God. She looked earnestly at the object of praise, trying to see the bright side of the situation, then said, "It is a very nice, but we did not really need him."

Women have tried to excuse their absence from the breakfast table on the plea that they never look their best in the early morning hours. But beauty is superfluous at breakfast save when it manifests itself in the cunning red and white of bacon, in the delicate aroma of coffee or in the translucent amber of marmalade or honey. Our aesthetic sensibilities are not fully awake till the afternoon.

Wore Outer Clothing Only.

Centuries ago, as Sir Walter Scott says in "Ivanhoe," men wore one thickness of clothes, whether of wool, leather or velvet. The shirt was invented, but for a long time was worn only by the nobility and gentry. Then followed the waistcoat, breeches and, later on, trousers. The overcoat, which succeeded the medieval cloak, was rare until the seventeenth century.
